Englishman Who Made Up for Fift;

From England comes a story of a tem-double-barreled, ten-horse-power moral. It is a significant, pathetic little tale, and hereunder it is set down as it was printed "In 1850, during the temperance revival which swept all England, one of the converts at St. Andrew's was a young gentleman of means, G. R. Jones. He was then wine-bibbers and can-rushers. But in De-his ways, and on Jan. 1, 1851, his thirtieth birthday, he made a solemn vow to allow no spirituous or fermented liquor to pass his lips for fifty years. This pledge, on account of the short-livedness of his family,

"In keeping with his vow he poured all of the wines and liquors in his wine cellar into the gutter before his house-except one barrel of Scotch whisky, which he buried in his cellar. Thereafter he began an active

"All of these offices he held on Jan. 1, 1901-his eightieth birthday-and in the light of his noble life most of his fellow-himself had not, and at a meeting at the whisky that he had buried in the cellar fifty years before. Tremblingly he removed serted a straw and tasted it. It was good Scotch whisky, with fifty years of age on it.

"The rest of the story is briefly told. For workers, he remained in the cellar. On the from behind the barrel and bit him. Then

The Mortgage Deduction Law.

To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal: A communication from Bedford dated June 5, finds fault with the Ball mortgage deduction law because trust companies are not taxed on an amount equal to all their defective in reference to the taxation of trust companies the proper way to do is to remedy the defect by amending the law so that such companies shall pay their just proportion of the taxes. The plan of the Bedford correspondent seems to be to let the trust companies continue to pay less than their share of the taxes, and in order to raise sufficient revenue to maintain the State and local governments repeal or detion to the fact that for twenty years or their property in personal securities the right to deduct their indebtedness, and that such a law has been held constitutional. The law of 1899 giving the small home owner the same right ought to have everyone for its friend. Certainly no juster law has been enacted in recent years.

Ethics of Numbers. Nebraska State Journal.

A reader of the Journal at Shubert, asks for information about the number of Chinamen that have been killed in riots in this country and the number of Americans that have been killed by the Boxers and other rioters in China. The Journal is unable to give the statistics but it is of the opinion that American mobs have killed a few dozen more Chinamen than Chinese mobs have killed of Americans. When it comes to killing, in the engagements between the Boxers and the American soldiers in China we are a good many more ahead, so that upon the whole it is doubtful if China owes us much indemnity except upon the proposition that an average American is several times as valuable as an average Chinaman. Our mobs have killed Chinamen merely because they have a prejudice against them. For a reason exactly identical the Chinese mobs have slain Americans. The mobs of the two peoples seem to resemble each other very closely and it seems to be a stand-off between the two peoples.

OVER 21,000 LOADED CARS HANDLED BY LOCAL LINES LAST WEEK.

The Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio Will Be Opened as Competitors-Other Railway News.

The train records show that there were received and forwarded at this point last week a total of 26,989 cars, 21,091 being loadd, an increase over the week ending June of 1,032, and over the corresponding week of 1900 of 1,641 loaded cars. Of this increase, as compared with last year's, 1,199 loaded cars was made by the Big Four lines and 243 by the Pennsylvania lines. With one or two exceptions all Indianapolis lines are handling a larger tonnage than at the corresponding period last year. East-bound shipments of grain increased last week, and local receipts of grain are considerably heavier than ten days ago. East-bound as well as local more live stock, dressed meats and produce are being handled than in any month in the history of the Indianapolis lines. West-bound, the tonnage in higher class freights, such as dry goods, is increasing, and in heavy groceries the movement is heavy. North-and-south roads are sharing in the great prosperity, handling a large tonnage of lumber north-bound, and also fruits and vegetables of Southern growth. Southward shipments of provisions, machinery and carriages are unusually heavy, and shipments of dressed meats to several of the Southeastern States have become an important item. So far as local business is concerned it is no exagvolume. It is stated officially that there is handled at the city freight depots and on the Belt tracks than in June, 1900. Usually in June freight traffic falls off sharply, but such is not the case this year. The large business the commission houses are doing

It is stated, however, that several passenger officials of the Pennsylvania lines will go with the Baltimore & Ohio, but this will not be for some time, or until President Loree, General Manager Potter and the other officials get their heads together and decide upon the most advisable method to pursue. One of the Pennsylvania Company men who went with the Baltimore & Ohio said that the present earning capacity of the road was very great, that its traffic was tremendous, and that there was no reason why this could not be maintained to the advantage of the Pennsylvania, which now owns the majority of the stock, and is interested in making the property pay large
